PRIVACY POLICY

We value our clients and their privacy is important to us. Therefore, we have adopted the following privacy policy to demonstrate our commitment to the protection of their privacy.

We collect nonpublic information about our clients from various sources, including the following:

- Information we receive from interviews regarding clients' tax situations
- Information we receive on applications, organizers, or by other means, such as client names, addresses, telephone numbers, Social Security numbers, bank routing and account numbers, dependent information, income, and other tax-related data
- Information from tax-related documents we require from clients in order to complete their tax returns, i.e. Forms W-2, 1099-R, 1099-INT, 1-99-DIV, 1099-MISC, and stock transactions

We do not disclose any nonpublic personal information about our clients or former clients to anyone unless requested to do so by our clients or required by law.

We restrict access to nonpublic personal information concerning our clients except to employees who need access to such information in order to provide products or services.

We maintain physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with federal regulations to guard all nonpublic personal information.

For further questions about our privacy policy, please contact us.
